

GET TO KNOW ...

ERIC LUCESCU

Eric Lucescu, a financial planner with Edward Jones, was inducted into the Rotary Club of Three Creeks on November 2, 2017 as a brand new Rotarian. Eric is a family man by nature, coming from a family of eight kids. He has six sisters and one older brother. His wife Maggie comes from a family of 11. They are both second-generation Romanians. Eric's engagement in the club includes two years of service as the Membership Director on the club's board of directors.

Why did you join Rotary? I joined because of being invited by one of the club members who asked me to visit the Rotary Club of Three Creeks. I had heard of Rotary but didn't know much coming into it. I decided to apply and become a member after visiting a couple of meetings and seeing other members interacting and how it was like a family within the community.

What do you like about our club? What I like most about our club is the family feel and the fellowship we have during every club meeting and during service projects. Prior to joining the club I had a lot going on with my church and with family, but didn't have much of a "community family". Fellowship and family rank high on my list of priorities, and I feel our club really embodies those throughout all we do.

What Rotary activity did you find your passion in? I think I found my passion in member outreach and leadership. I have always enjoyed leadership because it allows me to connect with people more and allows me to find out what's important to them. Ultimately I have been able to create deeper bonds with members and other leaders over the last two years that I have been the membership director.

What's your superpower? Hmm...Great question. I would say I wish my superpower would be to fly, or read minds, or something crazy like that, but ultimately if you ask anyone who knows me, my superpower is being able to get along with just about anyone. I love to connect and show love to others, and regardless of whether it's at work, within the church or just out in the community, it brings me joy to make those connections with others and try to be a light in their day.
